AN URGENT CALL BY L.O.D.E.

The British Empire and our Dominion are face to face with the darkest hour in our history. We are fighting grim, bitter and determined foes, who are out to crush us.

Our armies are fighting desperately and with undaunted courage. They must be provided with weapons to meet our enemies effectively.

Prime Minister Churchill of Britain has declared: "If the battle is to be won we must provide our men with ever-increasing quantities of the weapons and ammunitions they need. They must have, and have quickly, more airplanes, more tanks, more shells, more guns. It is imperative for these vital munitions."

Then again, Britain's secretary for the Dominions, Viscount Caldecote, broadcast an appeal on May 23rd, in part as follows: "One airplane immediately is worth ten in six months time."

In response to this vital need of the hour, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire pledged themselves to raise at least $100,000 for a Bomber-bomber, to be presented to the government. This amount must be raised within the month.

Plans have been made by Crows' Nest Chapter of the Order to raise its allotment. A tag-day will be held in Blaimore on Saturday, June 22nd. As citizens of a great and freedom-loving Empire and Dominion, we appeal to each and all of you to make your contributions as generous as possible to this URGENT AND IMMEDIATE NEED.

Remember, when you give, you give for freedom and liberty.

L.O.D.E. NOTES

The officers and members of Crows' Nest Chapter, L.O.D.E., wish to sincerely thank the public for the splendid support accorded them in their whist series; especially those who so generously donated prizes and refreshments.

The grand prize of the series was won by Mrs. T. Allen.

The total proceeds of the series amounted to $57.77. This money has been used to purchase wool for knitting fund comforts.

The knitting group and Chapter meetings will continue through the summer, owing to the urgent need.

J. R. McLeod, of The Enterprise staff, was a visitor to Calgary over the week end. While there he met a number of former Blaimoreites, including Sgt. J. J. Weaver, Corporal S. Moseley, John Radd, W. Glendenning, W. Brown, Eddie Arrol, and a real oldtimer of The Pass in the person of William "Red" Burrows.

PASS LAUNCHES DRIVE FOR AMBULANCE FUND

The appeal of the British Red Cross to the Canadian Red Cross Society for fifty ambulances will be met to the fullest possible point by local effort. It has been proposed that a subscription list be circulated in Blaimore, Bellevue, Coleman, Hillcrest and Frank, entirely separate from Red Cross activities as a citizen's contribution.

Coleman Junior Red Cross, of which Miss A. Yull is president, proposes that Coleman donate an ambulance, while Mr. W. Cole, proprietor of six Pass theatres, has offered to put on two shows in all his theatres and give the gross proceeds towards an ambulance. Mr. Cole was given a hearty vote of thanks for his kind offer, whereby he would stand all expenses of putting on the shows and his employees would donate a day's wages in addition.

Joe Krikosky reported having interviewed the majority of the mine workers in Blaimore, and as a result expected that $400 monthly would be subscribed to the Blaimore branch of the Red Cross.

CARD OF THANKS

The executive of the Crows' Nest Pass Musical Festival desire to express appreciation of services as box-office assistants rendered at the recent festival by Messrs. W. Jallip, S. G. Bannan, J. V. McDougall, D. MacPherson, H. Wheatcroft, T. J. Costigan, R. Racette, F. M. Thompson, P. C. Montalbetti, D. Allen, Allen May, S. Kubie, Roy Upham, Robert Oakes, Junior, E. A. Beebe, W. Allen, S. Comfort, A. S. May, F. J. Lamey, A. Hobson, J. Oakes, J. Clark.

The annual meeting will be held at the Greenhill hotel on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Christina Howe, who passed away June 17th, 1938.

"Not dead to those who loved her,
Not lost, but gone before;
She lives with us in memory
And will forevermore."

IN MEMORIAM

"Never shall you be forgotten;
Never shall your memory fade.
Sweet thoughts shall always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
And when the shadows of night are falling,
And we are all alone,
There comes a thought, dear father,
If you could just come home."
Ever fondly remembered by Mrs. R. Barnhill and son Robert.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

A Prison-Gate Arrest
"What do you want?" asked Ingie.

"Me? Nothing! I've been up to the prison making a few inquiries about a friend of one of those mocking birds, but you know what they are—they're love's labor lost, so to speak," said Elk, lighting a cigar and offering the case to his companion.

Ingie took the brown cylinder, smelt it, and biting off the end savagely, accepted the light which the detective held for him. By this time the train was moving and they were free from any possibility of interruption.

"Let me see; I heard something about you the other day... What was it?" Mr. Elk held his forehead, a picture of perplexity. "I've got it!" he said. "There was a burglary at your flat?"

"The cigar dropped from the man's hand."

"A burglary?" he said shrilly. "What was stolen?"

"The safe?" He almost screamed the word. "Opened the safe—damn them! They're not satisfied with sending me to five years of this hell, but they want to catch me again, do they?"

"I hope you didn't lose any money?"

"Great idea," murmured Elk sympathetically.

"You? What are you? The lackey of a class," sneered Ingie. "The hired torturer—the prison-feeder!"

"If they found those papers they're something to think about—do you hear?—something to spoil their night's sleep. And if there is sedition in them I'm willing to go back to Princetown."

Elk opened his eyes quickly.

"Oh, was that what it was?" he asked, disappointed. "Revolution stuff?"

"Money!" snarled the man. "Do you think I'm the kind who put money in a safe? You know what I lost!" He pointed an accusing finger at the detective. "You fellows do it! So that's why you're here, eh? A prison-gate arrest, is it?"

"My dear, good man!" Elk was pained. "I don't know what you're talking about! You're no more under arrest than I am. You could walk out of that door as free as the air, if the train wasn't moving."

And then he asked: "What did they pinch?"

It was a long time before the man recovered himself.

"If you don't know I'm not going to tell you," he said. "Some day"—he ground his teeth and in his eyes glared the fires of fanaticism.

"You and the likes of you call me a thief!" His voice rose again as he talked rapidly. "You branded me and put me into prison—segregated me from my kind... a parish, a parish! For what? For skimming off a little of the stolen cream? For taking a little of the money wrested from sweating bodies and breaking hearts! It was mine—mine!" He struck his chest with a bony fist, and his eyes blazed. "The money belonged to me—to my fellows, to those men there!" He pointed back to where, beyond the brow of a rise, lay the grim prison building. "I took it from these fat and greasy men, and I'm glad of it! One Jew less for their horrible women; one motor car fewer for their slaves to clean!"

Revolution Stuff

"Great idea," murmured Elk sympathetically.

"You? What are you? The lackey of a class," sneered Ingie. "The hired torturer—the prison-feeder!"

"If they found those papers they're something to think about—do you hear?—something to spoil their night's sleep. And if there is sedition in them I'm willing to go back to Princetown."

Elk opened his eyes quickly.

"Oh, was that what it was?" he asked, disappointed. "Revolution stuff?"

The man nodded curtly.

"I thought it was something worth while," said Elk, annoyed. "Stilly idea, though, isn't it, Ingie?"

"To you, yes. To me, no," snapped the other. "I hate England! I hate the English! I hate all the middle-class people, the sniveling, self-satisfied swine! I hated them when I was a starving actor and they sat in their stalls with a sneer on their faces."

"There's a lot to be said for fat people," mused Elk. "I've taken them low—though you wouldn't call him a fat man."

"Harlow!" scoffed the other. "Another of your moneyed gods!"

Evidently he remembered something, for he stopped suddenly.

"Moneyed gods," suggested Elk.

"I don't know." The man shook his head. "He may not be what he seems. In there—he jerked his head backward—they say he's crook to his back teeth! But he doesn't rob the poor. He takes it in large slabs from the fat men."

"If that's so, I've nothing to say. He's on the side of law and order," said Elk gently. "A man who hands out police stations as Christmas presents can't be wholly bad."

By the time the train pulled into Plymouth Station, Detective Inspector Elk was perfectly satisfied that there was nothing further to be learnt from the man. He went to the telegraph office and sent a wire to Jim which was short and expressive:

Revolution stuff. Nothing important.

He was on the same train that carried Mr. Ingie to London, but he did not occupy the same compartment, except for half an hour after the train flashed through Bath, when he strolled into the carriage and sat down by the man's side, and apparently he was welcome, for Ingie started talking.

To Her Fate

"Have you seen anything of my niece? Does she know about the burglary?" I think you told me, but I was so angry that I can't remember."

And, when Elk had given him the fullest particulars: "Harlow! Why did he come? He met Aileen at Dartmoor, you say?"

He frowned and suddenly slapped his knee. "I remember the fellow. He was sprawling in his car by the side of the road when we came back from the field that day. So that was Harlow! Does he know Aileen?" he asked suspiciously.

"They met at Dartmoor; that's all I know."

"I suppose he's running after her? She's a pretty sort of girl. With that type of man, money's no object. She's old enough to look after herself without any assistance."

So this Uppelav left Aileen Rivers to her fate.

He had wired from Plymouth asking her to call at the flat that night, and she arrived just as he had finished a dinner that he had cooked for himself.

"Yes, I've heard about the burglary," he said, cutting short her question. "They've got nothing that was worth a shilling to them, thank God! Why did you call in the police?"

And he had a shock.

"When she should, I have called in a doctor," he asked.

It was the first time he had met her in a period of freedom. She had had her instructions to look after the fat, smuggled out of prison by a discharged convict, and their talks during the brief visiting hours had been mainly on business.

"What does one usually do when a burglary is discovered?" she asked. "I sent for the police—of course I sent!"

He stared at her fiercely, but she did not flinch. It was his eyes which dropped first.

"I suppose it's all right," he said, and then: "You know Harlow, don't you?"

"I met him at Dartmoor, yes."

"A friend of yours?"

"No more than you are," she said, and he had his second shock.

"I'm not going to quarrel with you, and you had no such intention. I want to get fresh with me," he snapped. "You've been useful, but I've not been ungenerous. Harlow is a friend of yours—"

"He called here on the night of the burglary to offer me a job," she replied, without any visible evidence of her rising anger. "I met him at Princetown and he seemed to think that because of my relationship with you, I should find it rather difficult to get employment."

He muttered something under his breath which she did not catch, and it occurred to her that she had cowed this bullying little man, though she had no such intention.

"I shall not want you any more."

He took out his pocketbook, opened it and extracted a bank note. "This is the nature of a bonus," he said. "I do not intend continuing your allowance."

He expected her to refuse the money, and he was not wrong.

"Is that all?" she asked. She did not attempt to take up the note.

"That is all."

With a nod she turned and walked to the door.

"The charwomen are coming to-night to clean up," she said. "You had better make arrangements for one of them to stay on—but I suppose you've already made your plans."

Before he could reply, she was gone. He heard the street door slam after her, took up the money and put it back in his case, and he was without regret, for, if the truth be told, Mr. Arthur Ingie, despite the

There was a great deal for him to do: old bills to open and sort, papers and memoranda to retrieve from strange hiding places. The seat of the big settee on which Aileen had sat so often waiting for the hired women to finish their work, opened like a lid, and here he had documents, and, in a steel box, passbooks that might not have come to light even if the police had been aware of the flat at the time of his arrest and had made their usual search.

British Travelling Salesmen Make

Of Movies To Sell Goods

Colour films of the goods they are offering for sale may soon be part of the equipment of British commercial travellers throughout the world.

The British Film Institute has put forward the scheme—Sir Cecil Weir, head of the new Export Council established by the Board of Trade to increase Britain's wartime exports.

The majority of the export groups into which British industries have been divided for the purposes of the export drive have been approached, and most of them have expressed their keenness.

"The films would be in miniature size and made in colour," said a representative of the Institute.

"A traveller can put several reels into a suit case, and can hire a projector for a small sum in almost any town. He can then show the films in his customer's own office, and by supplying a running commentary can give the customer a better idea of the product and its qualities than any amount of talk would do."

These "samples in celluloid" provide, in a few minutes, a visual appeal which could not possibly be achieved by "stills" in illustrated catalogues. Films would cost £200 or less, according to length and quality. An additional advantage would be that the customer could see the product in various stages of manufacture, and British work-people at work on the home front.

Loyalty Of The Press Of The British Empire Is Stressed

The solidarity and loyalty of the press of the British Empire were expressed in a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Canadian section of the Empire Press Union held in Toronto recently with Lieut.-Col. Regret that the outbreak of the war had forced the postponement of the eighth Imperial Press Conference for the holding of which in Canada this year elaborate plans were well advanced, was coupled with confident anticipation that victory for the allied cause would permit the original program to be carried out in due time.

British Travelling Salesmen Make

Of Movies To Sell Goods

Colour films of the goods they are offering for sale may soon be part of the equipment of British commercial travellers throughout the world.

The British Film Institute has put forward the scheme—Sir Cecil Weir, head of the new Export Council established by the Board of Trade to increase Britain's wartime exports.

The majority of the export groups into which British industries have been divided for the purposes of the export drive have been approached, and most of them have expressed their keenness.

"The films would be in miniature size and made in colour," said a representative of the Institute.

"A traveller can put several reels into a suit case, and can hire a projector for a small sum in almost any town. He can then show the films in his customer's own office, and by supplying a running commentary can give the customer a better idea of the product and its qualities than any amount of talk would do."

These "samples in celluloid" provide, in a few minutes, a visual appeal which could not possibly be achieved by "stills" in illustrated catalogues. Films would cost £200 or less, according to length and quality. An additional advantage would be that the customer could see the product in various stages of manufacture, and British work-people at work on the home front.

120 POUNDS OF
FIGHTING FIREMAN

France's General Main, Weygand is a fireman who hates Jews. He already has fought communism on the field of war. His job today—as newly appointed commander-in-chief of the allied armies—is to fight fascism. It is a duty he will like.

Until suddenly called to Paris, General Weygand was commander of French forces in the Near East. It was there the next case of international arson was expected to develop.

When he was stationed in Syria, the little general described his purpose bluntly: "I am a fireman, if a fire breaks out anywhere within my reach, I shall try to put it out."

For a man who stands only five feet tall and weighs only 120 pounds, Weygand has had plenty of experience as a "fireman." But what he lacks in stature he makes up in fervor. For Weygand is fighting for a nation he loves perhaps even more than some of its native sons. To Weygand, France is an adopted land.

He was born in Brussels, Belgium, in January, 1867; he was reared on the Belgian estate of Empress Charlotte, who was childless. It was rumored he was the natural son of her husband, the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian of Mexico.

While he was at France's St. Cyr military academy he became a French citizen by option. Service with the Fourteenth Dragoons following graduation led to his being named chief instructor at the military school of Saumur.

Weygand advanced in rank until in the World War he became chief of staff to Marshal Ferdinand Foch, commander-in-chief.

Foch and Weygand became inseparable.

"See Weygand about this," was a phrase so repeatedly used by Foch it soon was a by-word.

In 1918, when Gen. Ludendorff was hammering at the British front in a drive toward the channel, Weygand was designated as the French representative at a military council of allied generals considering the emergency.

At the end of the World War, when the Russian bolsheviks were threatening to capture Warsaw, the Polish marshal, Josef Pilsudski, wired the French: "Send us Foch or Weygand."

Foch told the French war office: "Send them Weygand, he will do as well as I."

At Warsaw, Weygand looked at a few battle maps, gave crisp directions for attack, and sent the Red armies precipitately back into Russia within a few days.—Minneapolis Star.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windsor)

Edmonton, June 10.—Alberta's share in the national war effort is becoming larger as the conflict drifts on into more bitter fighting in northern France. A composite Alberta regiment is to be formed and will train in Edmonton as soon as recruiting is complete, it was announced last week end.

Two Edmonton units will form part of this regiment. They are the 19th Alberta Dragoons, commanded by Lieut.-Col. M. H. Wright, M.M., and the Edmonton Fusiliers under Lieut.-Col. H. S. Davies. These units are both part of the non-permanent force of the active militia.

During the week Premier William Aberhart ventured to issue an explanation of his much criticized remarks at a public meeting in Winnipeg, in which he was alleged to have charged the nations generally with having "fighting and quarrelling instincts." The premier issued a statement simply declaring that he had been "misunderstood." Veterans in Edmonton are wondering how plain English such as the premier is reported to have used, on the occasion could possibly be "misunderstood."

During the week a new phase of the Alberta oil situation was brought to light in correspondence between Premier William Aberhart and Mayor Lyle Telford, of Vancouver.

The mayor told Premier Aberhart there is no possibility for the expansion of Alberta oil markets. He asked whether it is possible to find why Alberta oil fields cannot compete with other producing areas, especially in Canada. Writing to Premier Aberhart, he says: "If Alberta broadens its markets to the export field, it would of necessity have to compete with the international oil prices, and we are told that the Venezuelan and Peruvian are still cheaper. Is it not possible for us to find out why Alberta fields cannot compete in petroleum prices with the other petroleum producing countries, especially in Canada."

Coal men in Edmonton issued a warning that there is danger of a fuel shortage in Alberta next fall and advised householders to get in a supply by August if possible. The main factor likely to create the shortage is lack of labor, especially labor skilled in mining trade. Similar warning was issued by coal men in the Drumheller district during the week.

This warning was made more impressive by J. McG. Stewart, of Ottawa, coal administrator of the wartime prices and trade board, who advised householders of the need to "secure their supplies of coal for the coming winter at the earliest possible date."

"ONE-WAY RIDE"

Characterizing the "close co-operation between Hitler and Mussolini" as "a 'one-way ride' which would end in disaster for Italy if she entered the conflict as an ally of Germany," Geoffrey Pantelmon, for many years a representative of the Rome government in the United States as head of the Italian tourist information office, announced his resignation in protest.

A STAB IN THE BACK

The anticipated has happened. Mussolini, for he stands for Italy, has chosen what he considers the most opportune time, while the Allies are engaged in a crucial struggle with the Germans in northern France, to declare war, stabbing the Allies in the back. The declaration of war will go down in history as the most cowardly and treacherous act of a great nation, striking at countries with whom it has been, ostensibly, at peace, with no cause for quarrel, countries anxious to keep the peace with Italy. It is an act of infamy which will rebound to the eternal shame of Italy.—Jethbridge Herald.

MERT PLUNKETT BUSY

In order to prevent the morale and fighting spirit of the army from being undermined by lack of diversion during leisure hours, the entertainment committee of the Canadian Legion War Services has been extremely active overseas. During the month of inactivity that preceded the present fighting, this was of very great importance, and in spite of the changed character of the war, there will no doubt be a need for further service of this kind among the troops not in the theatre of war.

Captain Mert Plunkett, Legion entertainment officer attached to the 1st Canadian Division, has formed two brigade concert parties within the 1st Division, as well as a first divisional concert party. The brigade parties, similar to those established within the unit of the C.A.S.F. in Canada, are fully costumed and equipped to provide entertainment for their own men wherever they go. The 1st divisional concert party is comprised of the most talented comedians and musicians of the Division itself and Canadian ex-service men residing in England are being utilized as far as possible as electricians, carpenters and stage crews.

PERSONAL HELP FOR THE TROOPS ASSURED

For nearly twenty years the Dominion and Provincial bureaus of the Canadian Legion; and the service officers of Legion branches everywhere have been assisting to solve the problems of veterans of the first Great War. These long-established facilities and experienced personnel were placed at the disposal of the C.I.W.S., immediately following the outbreak of the present war, so that members of the new fighting forces would be able to receive free advice and active assistance whenever required. This service has been so well appreciated by district officers commanding that in most districts orders have been issued to officers commanding units instructing them to refer matters relating to problems of pay and allowances, and all sorts of personal problems, to Canadian Legion personal service officers.

Reports received from officials of these bureaus leave no doubt that the services being rendered in this connection are warmly appreciated, not only by the men themselves, but by their parents, wives and children. Every day requests are made for help in solving a wide diversity of problems. In most cases these can be satisfactorily adjusted at the local bureau, but where pension claims, dependents' allowances, and assigned pay matters arise, the service bureau of the Dominion command in Ottawa is called upon for assistance.

HELPING CANADA'S WAR EFFORT MATERIALLY

Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of finance, is receiving freewill offerings to Canada's war effort in increasing volume.

The Lac des Monts Hunting and Fishing Club, Gaspé, Que., called a special meeting to consider construction of a new club house. The gravity of the country's present situation was discussed and members, instead of proceeding with a new club house, decided to send a cheque for $300 to the minister of finance.

George W. Rust, of Trail, B.C., has authorized the deduction of $4.49 a month from his war pension.

O. L. Empringham, a reporter of the house of commons, has authorized a deduction of five dollars a month from his salary cheque for the duration of the war.

The marriage has been announced of Miss Annie Jackson, formerly of Glasgow, and lately of Vancouver, to Mr. Arthur A. Pruett, of Coleman, proprietor of the Grand Union hotel.

PATRIOTISM

"Is your country's call do you hear it? You may ask: 'If I go what's the gain?' You'll be fighting for Freedom and Justice. Is your country calling in vain? Does it stir up a spirit within you To rise up and fight for your king? Or do you remain unaffected? Deep down in your heart it MUST ring."

"Praps one in your family before you Has died in the thick of the fray; But that does not scare a true patriot, That drives not his spirit away."

A true British spirit within him Remains to the end of his life; Whenever his country needs him, He's willing to join in the strife."

The soldier who fights in the trenches, Or the airman who fights in the air, The sailor who fights on the ocean, So brave and courageous appear."

They care not for honors or medals, They care not for glory or fame, Many will soon be forgotten

And some are known only by name. A mother who sits by her window Watching the ships, as she dreams Of her rosy-cheeked golden-haired baby—

He still is her baby it seems. Once he played with delight round her armchair;

Yes, she's doing more for her country Than many who now volunteer; She's fading anxieties, worries, She gave them her boy, to her dear."

"Is your country's call do you hear it? Do you answer and hold up your head? You must fight now for Freedom and Justice, You must follow where others have led."

"FRANCE CANNOT DIE"

Immediately after the Italian declaration of war, Premier Reynaud broadcast a message from Paris to the nation, proclaiming France's strength in the Mediterranean.

"The Allies are stronger in the Mediterranean than anywhere else," he said. "France may be ailing, but she is not downed. She is now in a position to defend herself. Her military forces in the Mediterranean are such that she can not be conquered. France cannot die! The world will soon know that moral force is a great strength. France has been through even greater difficulties, and it has always been at that moment that she has astounded the entire world."

A bonus share plan for employees who enlisted for war service has been approved by the management of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co.

Employees who entered the service before June 1st, 1937, and had three years' service before enlisting, and would have been qualified for five shares on January 16, 1940, had they remained with the company, will be granted five shares of company stock. For others a graduating scale downwards is provided.

"MOUNTIES" PICTURE
ANNOYS HITLER

Hitler doesn't like the Mounties. A movie theatre in Basle, Switzerland, recently exhibited a film on the life of the R.C.M.P., entitled "Canada's Mutiga G-Menner" (Canada's courageous G-men). The poster, advertising the film, showed the Mounties on parade, driving into the North by aeroplane and canoe. It also printed this paragraph: "Canada: the great and rich land which is sending its sons to fight the barbarians across the Atlantic."

That aroused the Nazis across the German frontier. In its indignation, the Voelksischer Beobachter, chief Nazi paper of Berlin, reproduced the poster with two arrows darkly pointing to the offending paragraph. "We ask our readers to draw their own conclusions of Swiss neutrality," the Voelksischer Beobachter lamented, not without menace.

LORNE GREENE

Lorne Greene, the voice behind the Canadian Press national news summaries, which are heard over the C. B. C. daily at 8 p.m. M.S.T., is a native of Ottawa and has been in radio less than a year. He gave his first station call at C.B.C. last October and four months later was assigned to the news in Toronto.

He is 25 years old, six foot tall and a bit, holds a B.A. from Queen's University and spent two years in New York on a fellowship with the Neighborhood Playhouse. His voice is one of the most distinctive in Canadian radio circles, and has rapidly become a favorite with listeners throughout the Dominion.

Greene was born in Ottawa on February 12, 1915, just 25 years before receiving the coveted news assignment. Tall, handsome and tipping the scales at 186 pounds, his rich, dramatic voice reflects a schooling in the theatre, the lecture hall and the campus. He was an intercollegiate football and basketball player, majored in French and German, graduated from Queen's in 1937 with honors, after a crowded scholastic career which included also the presidency of the Dramatic Guild.

ADDRESS BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL VILLENEUVE, QUE.

"We must all take advantage of these solemn prayers to ask the Sacred Heart to kindle and spiritualize in ourselves the sentiments of the greatest and purest patriotism, so that we may feel the harms which befall our friendly nations and the dangers which threaten the whole of Christianity. In these days when disturbing ideas conflict in confusion, the world is in need of the riches of the Sacred Heart. It is proper to condemn the superficial minds who, by their inconsiderate or malevolent declarations towards the nations representing the cause of justice, weaken the Christian sentiment of right and of a just victory.

"As a persecuting and sacrilegious potentate, murderer of children and women, Hitler represents the felony and the very organization of evil. His adversaries and victims represent patriotism and right. The Pope, with prudence, but also with an indomitable energy, has publicly pronounced himself against the barbarous audacity of a man who respects nothing in humanity. We must loudly proclaim, to the face of the world, and more so to the adorable sacrament of the Divine Heart, that the flag of the allied armies is our flag. The church does not bless the war, but it blesses the sword of those who are using it for good. Our allies, by treaty, by blood, by tongue and by political solidarity, have the right to count on our wishes, on our prayers and even on our sacrifices, to ensure their victory. Religion gives us a sacred right to be supernaturally devoted to the cause of our allies. I incline to think, nay, I remain convinced, that the civil authorities will, in this effort towards victory, make use of a great prudence and will measure our sacrifices to the limits of our means."

PRODUCTION OF TANKS IN CANADA MAY BE STARTED

Ottawa—Steps are being taken immediately to settle the question of tank production in Canada. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of industry, told the commons.

He said a delegation of engineers is expected to leave for the United Kingdom by the next boat and go into the question thoroughly and settle it "once for all."

From experience of the past weeks the British now have developed a 40-ton tank which they believe is an effective tank under modern conditions, a tank suitable for Canada to copy, the minister said.

"Even after information is obtained and all possible help has been secured outside of Canada, it will still be an exceedingly complex job for Canadian industry to build tanks," said Mr. Howe.

"No one firm will be called upon to do the entire job. It will mean the collaboration of the heavy industries of this country."

(Mr. Howe told the House of Commons last May 28 that specifications for a heavy tank, known as a "Mark 3" or "Bantam tank," had been received in Canada from Britain last January. But before production could be started the order for 100 such tanks was withdrawn by the British war supply board on April 2, after the tank design had been altered.)

(At that time Mr. Howe said it had been decided that the logical plant in Canada to undertake that order was the Angus shops in Montreal and the Canadian Pacific Railway, which owns the shops, had stated it would undertake the work and immediately placed its engineers on the job of organizing production.)

"The situation as regards tanks is this," Mr. Howe said.

"Canada can undoubtedly make a tank and tanks are made in the United States. However, we have in Europe a battle of tanks which is developing some new facts about tanks as weapons of warfare."

"For every tank that is invented a gun is shortly afterwards invented to deal with that particular type of tank and the effectiveness of tanks in the field depends on their being proof against the latest type of anti-tank guns."

"British experience in the field has resulted in a change of ideas as to what constituted 'the effective tank for warfare of this day,' and these ideas differed widely from those of the United States military authorities."

"The academic question whether tanks can or cannot be made in Canada depends for its answer upon the type of tanks you have in mind and I presume that a great many of the differences that have arisen in discussions here have arisen because some people have one idea of a tank and I have in mind another."

"We can produce in this country alloy steel up to a maximum thickness of two inches. The type of tanks that I have in mind (40 tons) has armored steel of more than twice that thickness."

"We produce gasoline engines in this country that would propel some kind of a tank. The tank I have in mind is propelled with a Diesel engine much larger than anything we have produced in Canada."

"It is folly to say that we cannot produce Diesel engines in Canada, Canadian industry can do anything provided it is given sufficient time and development expense. It can be done but it may not be of much help at the moment."

Work has begun on a new military motor vehicle order involving an expenditure of $15,000,000, a government announcement said.

Chassis and engines are being produced by the Ford and General Motors companies, while other companies are working on wheels and tires. Specifications for the special bodies involved are being prepared.

French Cabinet Shuffle

Premier Drops Edmond Daladier From The Government

Paris. — Premier Paul Reynaud reshuffled his cabinet, dropping former Premier Edmond Daladier from the government and taking for himself the portfolios of war minister and minister of foreign affairs.

Daladier had been foreign minister in the Reynaud government. Dropping of Daladier, who held the war ministry in the first seven months of the conflict and was premier during the Munich crisis, was the most striking change made by the French premier. Daladier has been under fire for some time for his role in pre-war French politics and preparedness.

General Charles de Gaulle, who becomes Reynaud's chief assistant at the war ministry, was promoted from the rank of colonel May 25. At that time he replaced one of 15 generals ousted by Reynaud in the drastic house cleaning of the French army that was instituted after the German break-through at Sedan.

Train Air Pilots

Flying And Training Organization Rapidly Expanding

London. — Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary for air, told the House of Commons that the flying and training organization of the Royal Air Force is being expanded "on a considerable scale" to meet "all further requirements."

Sir Archibald said a large number of training schools "have already been or are in the process of being established overseas in countries most suitable to the purpose."

Sir Archibald said he had no knowledge of any "understanding" whereby Britain "should not bomb military objectives in Germany until they bombed us."

The Royal Air Force, he said, had made "a number of successful attacks against military objectives in Germany."

New Kind Of Army

Call For Recruits To Fight For Good Against Evil

London. — Major-General L. W. Amps, director of the auxiliary military pioneers' service, Royal Engineers, called for recruits of all ages for a new kind of army to fight for good against evil. General Amps spoke to an enthusiastic audience of 1,300 in Battersea Townhall, supporting the mayor's moral re-armament campaign to strengthen morale.

"Each of us," he said, "if we are to do our utmost for England, must look to ourselves to see if any of the things against which we are fighting—dishonesty, selfishness, greed—still exist in us."

Other speakers included Phyllis Konstam, wife of Bunny Austin, the tennis player; wives and mothers of men in the services; and factory workers.

Labor Ministry Decree

Britain To Control Any Interference In Industry

London. — Clement Attlee, lord privy seal, announced to the House of Commons a new labor ministry decree controlling the hiring of workers in mechanical industries, building, public works, agriculture and coal mining.

"The object of the order," Mr. Attlee explained, "is to prevent interference with production in engineering, building and civil engineering by unnecessary movements of workers, and to enable our labor resources to be directed to points where needs are greatest and most urgent."

"As regards agriculture and coal mining, the object is to retain workers at present engaged in those industries and bring back those formerly employed in them when they fall out of employment elsewhere."

Set All-Time Record

Churchill, Man. — An all-time record for early break-up was established here June 4 when the ice went out of the harbor. This is earlier by seven days than the previous record set last year. Boats may now be anchored at the dock of the northern seaport without ice interference. Churchill river is running free to the sea.

Rotary Contributes Ambulance

Calgary. — Five minutes was all the time necessary for Calgary Rotarians to contribute $2,146 to purchase and fully equip a Red Cross ambulance for use in war torn areas of Europe.

ACTION IS TAKEN FOR SUPPRESSION OF ILLEGAL GROUPS

Ottawa. — Outlawing of more than a dozen organizations, including the Communist party, was announced by Justice Minister Hon. Ernest Lapointe in the House of Commons.

These organizations will become illegal on publication in the Canada Gazette of the order-in-council amending the Defence of Canada regulations to that effect, Mr. Lapointe said. After that publication any person being a member of any of these associations or groups would be guilty of an offence against the regulations.

The list included several foreign language organizations, as well as the Canadian Labor Defence League, the League for Peace and Democracy and the Young Communist League.

The Communist party was already an illegal organization under a judgment of Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, delivered at Ottawa last month following the conviction of three men on charges arising out of the distribution of anti-war pamphlets.

The men were Harry Binder, Communist newspaperman, his brother, Louis Binder, former soldier in an Ottawa unit, and Arthur Roy Saunders, a civil servant.

The organizations declared illegal are: Auslands Organization of the National Sozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei; Deutsche Arbeiterfront; the Canadian Society for German Culture (Deutscher Bund for Canada); National Unity party; Canadian Union of Fascists; the Communist Party of Canada; the Young Communist League of Canada; the Canadian Labor Defence League; the League for Peace and Democracy; the Ukrainian Labor Farmer Temple Association; the Finnish Organization of Canada; the Russian Workers' and Farmers' Club; Croatian Cultural Association; Hungarian Workers' Club; Polish People's Association; Canadian Ukrainian Youth Federation.

The new regulation also provides that in any prosecution under it if it proved an accused person attended meetings of an illegal organization, spoke publicly in advocacy of it, or distributed its literature he shall be presumed to be a member. In the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Another amendment to the regulations designed to strengthen the hands of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police provides that all commissioned officers of the R.C.M.P. shall be justices of the peace for the purpose of issuing search warrants.

Will Be Investigated

Britain Looking Into Ford's Proposition For Aircraft

London. — The ministry of aircraft production has instructed representatives in the United States to "investigate fully any proposition" Henry Ford might be able to make to the British government in connection with his recent assertion that his company could produce 1,000 aircraft daily within six months.

The disclosure of the inquiry was made by the ministry's parliamentary secretary, J. J. Llewellyn.

AIR PROTECTOR

A world war naval hero, Admiral Sir Edward Evans, above, was named by Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's aircraft production minister, to take charge of the "local protection and security of England's aircraft factories and airbases."

Parachute Troops

Report Says That Majority Of Those Dropped In Holland Were Killed

London. — Authoritative sources, basing their estimates partly on the evidence of German prisoners, said a majority of the German parachute troops dropped in Holland were killed. "Amazing examples," cited by these sources, included a case of 16 infantrymen in one plane of whom only one prisoner survived. In another, they said, of 10 men who tried to land, three were killed in the air and four were shot when they reached the ground.

A British fighting pilot was credited by the air ministry with "worrying" a German bomber into a crash after the Briton's ammunition had run out. Over the Dunkirk area the pilot encountered a German Junker but his cartridge drum had been emptied. The air ministry said the pilot dived at the Junker's tail and "wounded" the enemy so much by a succession of stunts that ultimately he made a fatal error in trying to turn and went crashing into the ground."

Strength Of Fleet

Britain's Naval Strength Greater Than At Beginning Of War

London. — Despite the loss of six destroyers in the monumental evacuation of Allied troops from Dunkirk, Britain's total strength in these vital craft is greater than it was at the outbreak of war. New destroyers have been launched faster than they have been lost.

When the smouldering embers were fanned into the flames of war last September Britain had a fleet of 18 destroyers. Six of them were Canadian and five Australian. Six just then completed for Brazil were impressed into His Majesty's fleet.

Twenty destroyers have been lost by Britain. Admiralty records show that 11 German destroyers have been definitely sunk and that two more are believed to have been sunk. However, these losses do not compare as the Nazis had only 22 heavy destroyers at the start of the war. A number of others they claim for this class are really torpedo boats.

Refugee Children

Plans Have Been Completed For Care Of Children In Canada

Ottawa. — Plans have been completed for fullest co-operation between Canadian organizations in receiving and placing throughout the Dominion thousands of refugee and British children when the British and French governments are agreeable to the movement. Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, announced.

The agreement for fullest co-operation between the Dominion, the provinces and child welfare and other organizations was reached at the Dominion-provincial conference called by Mr. Crerar. All provinces were represented.

Associated in the conference deliberations were some technical advisers of the child and other welfare agencies which will work with the provinces and the immigration authorities in the reception, placement and after care of the children.

The immigration branch, in connection with the selection abroad of children, will obtain all family particulars so as to ensure the retention of identity of children, this being essential should they later return to their own people.

The department of pensions and national health will look after medical supervision in transit, including the train journey in Canada. Provincial authorities and social agencies will come into immediate action at receiving centres to which children will be forwarded from ocean ports.

The plan visualizes distribution as quickly as possible after arrival so that children can be restored to normal life in private homes. The accomplishment of this task calls for the closest co-operation between the Dominion governments and the nine provinces, the announcement said.

BRITAIN PREPARES HOME FRONT FOR ANY INVASION

London. — Ever mindful of Big Bertha shells, planes and parachutists that can hurdle the channel in a matter of minutes, Britain has regular troops drilling on village greens where no soldier has marched since Cromwell's time, and the usually idyllic countryside is strewn with barricades.

This is the long inviolate home battlefield, where Britons now are ready to spring into instant action if the blitzkrieg turns from the battle lines of the continent.

The evidence is not only in the men and guns of the "Ironside" defenders with their highly mobile and heavily armed units and planes droning watchfully and incessantly overhead, but in the spirit of the people themselves.

They have been warned by their leaders to guard against every kind of "brutal and treacherous manoeuvre" and the warning has struck deep.

Riot-squads of General Sir Edmund Ironside's "Ironside" hardened regulars with machine-guns, anti-tank guns, demolition materials and light cannon—have replaced local volunteers as the kingdom's first line of defence.

Military observers, stressing that parachutists are Germany's most daring and resourceful troops, had questioned the wisdom of the government's earlier scheme of sending stripings and oldsters armed with rifles to fight them.

As important as the troops to the general plan of defence is the government's drive to rout fifth columnists.

Leaders here are aware that fifth columnists in the low countries and France left food, gasoline and directions at strategic points for the invading Nazis and caches of arms and ammunition for parachutists.

Farmers have been requested to dig ditches in pastures to hinder the landing of German troops and planes and this they do with many a curse at Hitler.

They have been asked, also, to scatter haystacks over the fields instead of "putting them in orderly rows" to leave harrows, reapers and other farm implements where they will cause the most inconvenience to any invaders from above.

As the farmers comply, the neat English countryside is transformed into something that looks like the aftermath of a hurricane. The government is buying up surplus livestock in certain coastal farming areas to leave the land bare of food.

BRITISH LABOR WILL SPEED UP WAR INDUSTRIES

London. — Britain's army in overalls was pledged to gear up war industries for the full equipment of the British armies when they again take the field in force.

As the whole nation was fitted into the program of rushing the heavy war industries to arm reformed divisions, the Royal Air Force carried on doggedly Britain's share in the defence of France.

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, pledged workmen to a war-speed job in the heavy industries under new orders banning strikes and lockouts and placing labor under rigid government control.

In an address to London building workers he said the system based "on monopoly and big business failed to deliver the goods in our hour of trial."

"One thing we are producing, we are producing order out of chaos, and chaos it was when we went in," said Mr. Bevin, who before entering the government at Winston Churchill's invitation last month was secretary-general of the Transport and General Workers' Union.

"There will not be a boom at the end of this war as there was after the last war," he said. "The only way of absorbing these millions (of soldiers back into industry and our national life is the way of public works and public enterprise. Social effort is bound to take the place of the kind of thing that occurred at the end of the last war. There is no alternative."

"We must afford at the end of this struggle, when we have won, to leave men standing in queues at labor exchanges without directions where to go and what to do."

Running Behind Schedule

Says Hitler Expected To Defeat Allies Before End Of May

London. — Adolf Hitler confidently expected the capitulation of Britain and France by May 25, a member of the Netherlands legation at Berlin said in an interview here. The diplomat is now stationed in London.

According to this diplomat, the Hitler blitzkrieg machine is running behind schedule. Hitler, he said, wrote Premier Mussolini of Italy that French and British resistance would be crushed in 15 days following the occupation of Holland and Belgium. Holland was supposed to have been over-run in a day. The time-table did not work this way.

The German army did not have more than 15,000 trained parachutists, the diplomat said, and most of these are believed to have been killed or captured. Most of Germany's troop transport planes, he also said, were lost in the past few months.

Irishmen Enlist

Thousands In Eire Answer The Call To Defend Country

Dublin. — Tens of thousands of Irishmen have answered the call to arms, to defend their country. Army officers said they were amazed at the response of men of all ages.

Prime Minister de Valera, who previously has warned against the danger of Eire being used for a base of attack on Britain, said the country is "in imminent danger, against which we might have only a few days to prepare."

He urged internal unity, declaring, "If we don't hang together we will hang separately."

Gasoline Reserves

Canada Is Holding Huge Stores Of Fuel Gas

Ottawa. — Reserves of high grade aviation gasoline in Canada "now are very substantially in excess of the Royal Canadian Air Force and air training plan requirements during the coming year," the department of munitions and supply announced.

The reserves have been built up voluntarily by oil companies and the capacity of Canadian oil refineries is sufficient to take care of the expanding needs of R.C.A.F. and the air training plan in 1941 and 1942.

Appeals Jail Sentence

Paris. — A Paris shopkeeper, sentenced to eight months in jail for making slighting remarks about King Leopold III, before the Belgian monarch capitulated to the Germans May 28, has appealed his case on the grounds he showed "remarkable foresight."
